NO. 70

Mormonism formed the topic of an address which was delivered last Sunday by Professor J. M. Coyner, President of the Salt Lake Collegiate Institute, in the Seventh Presbyterian Church at Cincinnati. Mormonism, he said, was a moral plague that was spreading in all directions with alarming rapidity. "Utah Mormonism," said the Professor, "is not the Mormonism that is expounded out of the Territory by from 600 to 800 mission aries, at a yearly expense of $1,000,-000, to win proselytes. It is a king-dom of itself, thoroughly organized from the chief hierarch down to the lowest servant, whose object is the overthrow of the social conditions ed on Christianity and Republicanism at the same time. They boast that within fifteen years, as indicated by their present expansion, and the vast territory within which their principles are either openly avowed or covertly maintained, they will virtually have accomplished their result." Within the last six years they have organized in the Territory eight churches and twenty three schools, which are maintained chiefly by contributions maintained chiefly by contributions from the East. One of the speaker's most startling statements was that nearly one-third of the territory of nearly one-third of the territory of the United States is virtually under the control of Mormons. "Over Utah as a center," he said, "they hold absolute sway. They are masters in Ari zons, Idaho and Wyoming. They are swiftly and surely moving on Mantana and Washington Territories, and politically in Nevada and Colorado they hold the balance of power."

Memory Knocked Out by a Blow. Waterbury American.

Dr. Robert G. Stanwood mysteriously disappeared while spending a vacation from his duties as principal of the Waterbury High School. It was not until a month ago that he was heard from. He was at Brunswick, Mrs. Stanwood hastened South and has been with her husband ever since. Mrs. Stanwood found her husband so changed in appearance that she hardly knew him. His memory is gone, and, having apparently forgotten his learning, he is at work in a lumber yard. From all that can be gathered from his disjointed recollections on the day when he disappeared from the day when he disappeared from Maine, he was sailing, and, going faster than he intended, attempted to catch a train. While hurrying with all his might a yacht came round from among the slands and seemed bent on the sail of the running him down. He raised his oar to ward them off, when one of the villians struck him on his head, completely paralyzing him and rendering him senseless. Brain fever must have him senseless. Brain fever must have supervened. This is the last that he remembers. The probability is that they robbed him and then landed him in a helpless condition. When he knew his indentity and realized anything, or, in other words, came to his right senses, he found himself in Savannah as destinate as the recovery vannah, as destitute as the poores tramp living from hand to mouth.

A She Bear's Instinct.

Santa Barbara Frees, June 15. One of the most touching incidents on record, illustrative of animal in-struct and affection, occurred during a recent bear beat in this vicinity. The orties who vouch for the truth of the Barbara. One of them shot a small cub through the head, killing it instantly, the ball entering the head just back of the eyes. Something called the attention of the hunters away from the spot, and when they returned, a half hour afterwards, they found the mother standing over her turned, a half hour afterwards, they found the mother standing over her lifeless cub apparently engaged in licking and caressing its head. A couple of well-directed shots soon stretched the she hear by the side of her dead offspring, and the butchers approached to secure their game. To their surprise they found the bullet hole in the cub's head partly filled with finely-chewed grass and leaves. The mother had evidently seen the blood oozing from the wound, and blood oozing from the wound, and had endeavored to do what she could toward staunching the flow.

Sturdy Swimmer.

N. Y. 800.

One of the sturdlest feats in awimming ever performed in St. Louis was by William Barn, who when he plunged from the great bridge, desired to commit suicide, but changed his mind on striking the water. The suicide of Clive Hersee, a brother of Rose Her-Clive Hersee, a brother of Rose Hersee, the prima donna. recently from Colorado, was marked by a similar change of purpose, but in his case he could not save himself. The Soldene Opera Company, to which he belonged, were on a train which was delayed on a high bridge over Clear Creek. As though suddenly conceiving the idea, he criel, "Good by all," and jumped from the platform of the car. Once in the water he tried with all his migh to reach the shore, and his ompanious sought to assist him; but a swift current swept him away.

SPECULATIONS.

A New York Post Albany special of out of the difficulty is to elect for Senators one man named by Conkling. By a upion of Conkling men and Democrats a motion to adjourn until to-morrow was carried in joint convention by 53 to 41. A hasty canvass between Platt's ballot and the announcement of the vote on adjournment showed that if another vote were taken five votes would be gained for Depew, and a third ballot would probably have elected him.

Conkling, Grant, Platt and Arthur are in conference most of the time, and it is hinted that Grant mey be put forward to cover the Conkling retreat. The New York Senator is said to be much more cheerful, and it is very plain that the Democrats are merely useful in preventing Conkling's defeat. The New York World says that Jacobs, the Democratic nominee, is ineligible under the State Constitution. Conkling is now devoting his attention to the testimony in the bribery case, and it is safe to say that it will be thoroughly ventilated.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The San Francisco Argonaut of Saturday states its belief that Roger Charles Tichborne is in San Francisco. A man claiming to be the long-lost Baronet has made his appearance there and has given a complete history of his life since last heard from. He made his statement to General William H. L. Barnes, who places confidence in his statement. The Argonaut says the statement wrs submitted to the Duke of Sutherland and William H. Russell, while in that city, "creating a profound impression upon those gentlemen and convincing them of the probable truth of the statements therein contained."

The Gridley Herald comes to the front this week with an amusing narative concerning a venerable, but now defuoct sand-hill crane. The article will excite the envy of tellers of snake and fish stories. Severely condensed, it is to the effect that this unique crape, which was shot on Butte Creek. had about its neck a silver coin suspended by a wire. The sides of the coin were smooth, and bore the following inscriptions: "Captured at Fort Du Quesne, May 25, 1783.""Released at Fort Dearborn, November 17. 1846."

From Mr. Steiner the GAZETTE learns that 25 ranches at the north end of Sieres valley, around the Island, will only get one-fourth of a crop. The other ranches in that locality are still under water and the hoppers have not commenced to batch out there. There are now four times as many grandioppers in the valley than at any time before. The dairyman are driving out because they will not have hay enough to feed. The but will, no doubt, as soon as the grains is gone. Two-thirds of the valley is in the condition above described.

LOCAL RAILBOADS

rogress of the Carson & Colorado-Passenger and Freight Notes—How the Map of Nevada is to be Cut Up by Railroad Lines.

According to the Chronicle, the preliminary surveys for the narrow-gauge railroad from Hawthorne to Candelaria, a distance of 53 miles, were long since completed. Eleven miles of track is laid beyond Hawthorne up to Monday, which exhausts all of the iron available. Further shipments of rails and trimmings are expected daily. As soon as the material arrives track-laying will be actively resumed, and the road finished to Candelaria within two runs in a southeasterly direction from Hawthorne, and at a point 25 miles out will be turned due south. The line has now reached the New Boston ther on the reilroad will connect with orado will be sure to get all the freight now shipped to Austin. At this point connection will also be had with Downieville, 30 miles distant. It is probable that the Wadsworth trade of Grantsville will be diverted to the narrow-guage. The extension of the line even to its present distance from erable saving in the time required to haul freight from Bodie, Aurora, Haw-Gold Mountain district now coming into prominence. About seventy-five ploy of the Carson & Colorado Com-pany, mostly white men. The loca-tions for the track are made by James Oliver, Chief Engineer of the road, and assistants, who keep two miles in advance of the tracklayers. The cleven miles of rail out from Hawthorne, just completed, are laid through a saudy desert of unusual depth and dreariness. It is the intention of the company to continue track laying at least 100 miles beyond Candelaria, and probably much farther.

INCREASED TRAFFIC.

Travel on the Virginia & Truckee has considerably increased during the past few weeks. The Central Pacific is doing a heavy passenger traffic. The railroad boom has not yet reached the Carson & Colorado, which road can bosst of but ten to twelve passengers daily on each through train. The incoming trains carry fewer travelers than those going out, owing to the very low rates offered by the fast freight stage lines from Bodie to Mound House.

Last Saturday's through trains, out and in, on the Carson & Colorado rail road, had but four passengers each. The railroad passenger depots at Gold Hill and this city are being kal-mined at a contract price of $220. WAGES ON LOCAL RAILROADS.

Train men on the Carson & Colorado able opportunity 3 ARS M. D. receive wages based on about the same tariff as that of the Central Pacific. Engineers are paid $110 per month; conductors, $90; firemen, $75, and brakemen $70. These rates are considerably less than those which revail on the Virginia & Truckee. That company pays engineers $5; conductors, $4; firemen,$3 50, and brakemen $3 25 per day.

BUILT OR BUILDING.

The GAZETTE published vesterday an account of the recent election in New York whereby the Nevada Central Railway from Battle Mountain to Austin passed under the management of Jay Gould. It is now rumored with some color of truth, that a broad gauge road is to be built across Nevada from Salt Lake City to Stockton, California

There are three surveying parties in the field in Eureka county locating proposed extensions of the E. & P. and mapping out routes for new lines which are projected southward.

The Lewis rai!road, connecting that thriving camp with central lines of transportation, was finished some time

The Bodie and Mono road, 36 mile

R, which is eventually to connect Reno with the Dailes, Oregon, and tap a magnificent belt of country. This road is a certainty, and it seems to have as good prospects as any.

It will be seen from the above notes that railroad building is going on south, east and north of R-no and all within the State. Sagedom is to be marked on the map in all direc-tions with lines of railroads, and the hatural resources of the State never had a better promise of speedy and thorough development.

A PLEASANT CORPSE

How a Nevada Newspaper Man is Obliged

A journalist from the mountains who was visiting in this city last week, says the San Francisco Daily Report, was relating some of his experiences in running a newspaper in a mining camp. "I have always," said he, "made it a rule in reporting a shooting scrape in my paper to say that the man who got away with the fight was a quiet, gentlemanly sort of a man, and that the deceased had incipient pneumonia and would have died in a short time anybow. There was one fellow, though, who had killed five or six men within a few weeks, and I wrote a leader in which I suggested that the graveyard was filling up too fast for a new camp; that subscription lists for funeral expenses were almost too frequent; and that some folks ought to drop on themselves and not be so handy with their six-shooters. The next day that fellow called on me and wanted to know if the article was intended to convey any personal reflections. Of course I said: 'Certainly not, sir;' but I was always he was drunk. When he was sober he was a quiet, gentlemanly sort of a man. Well, one night, while he was waltzing with his favorite hurdy, Slim Pete popped him over with a pill from a bulldog-plugged him right square between the eyes-and he never kicked. I was summoned on the Coroner's jury, and I felt a sort of relief in bringing in a verdict of death caused by a pistol shot fired by some hand unknown to the jury. Horrible Sufferings.

N. Y. Tribune.

Further details of the fate of that portion of the Flatters expedition ich remained in the Sabara under the command of Sergeant Pobequin presents a scene of unsurpassed hor-ror. The natives having stolen all the camels which bore the water, the men made their way on foot to the caravan route in hope of meeting succor. But no caravan came in sight. Without food or drink, the men endured unspeakable agonies for a time, but were at last driven to the fearful resort of cannabalism. Fifteen men were devoured in turn, Pobequin being the fitteenth. Then help came. A caravan arrived and provided the half-insane survivors with a small supply of food and water, but only in return for money. When at last they were rescued by the Meharis from Uargla, only twelve of them remained alive, and their minds and bodies were al-most fatally wrecked by the hardships they had undergone.

He is over eighty years old, but still stout, hale and hearty, and can kill a squirrel out of the tallest tree with a rifle and without spectseles. He climbed the flag pole at the celebrated Henry Clay mass meeting in Morganton in 1844, and drack a health to Clay from the top of the pole, a distance of eighty feet from the ground. He accomplished the same feat at the Seymour and Blair barbeeue at Morganton in and Blair barbecue at Morganton in 1868, and the old man was expected to climb the Hancock and English fig pole last year, but was disap-pointed, as there was none erected. Mr. Fair was never sick in his life, nd can do a good days' work now.
